Wilson Says Chafing Dish Supper on Porch Simple Way to Revive Weariest

Dainty Menus for Macaroni and Shrimp, Floradora Eggs or Barbecued Ham With Creamed Potatoes Are Especially Suited to Summer Weather

By MRS. M. A. WILSON Countett. 1921. by Mrs. M. A. Wilson DAINTY Little suppers may be easily concocted with the aid of the chaf-ist dish during the very hot weather. When the family returns from business and dreadfully fagged, let them site and change into cool clothing and serve them a chafing dish supper the porch.

An ordinary serving table will provide sufficient table space. Just spread the table with a spotlessly white cloth and then arrange the appetizers in shallow dishes, covered with cracked ice.

RUFFLED LITTLE GIRL ALL IN PINK & WHITE

By CORINNE LOWE We can only surmise gently what gree the fashion drawing lady her va-nety of gesture and facial expression. What disdains, old gricfs, fresh fears and remorseful reflections are always pressing upon her consciousness? Cer-ially there is some disturbing influence at work, for you never find her nowsdays maintaining a normal composure.

Thus the little girl of ten whom we preent today seems quite as much raffed as Miss Muffet at the time of her great crisis. What can have fright-med her?

This present model has a skirt of pink and white striped dimity, fastening to a waist of white organdie. The maker and the plaited ruffles over the shoulders are an individual note.
